

Christian Williams

Bio

Christian William has been teaching art for twenty-nine years and is now at Stanstead College, where he has been since 1992.

From Montreal, he began to practice at Concordia University where he received his Bachelor's degree in Fine Arts as well as at McGill's Master's Degree.

Before teaching, during the 1980s, he worked for several years as a professional artist in Montreal. It was during this time that he became specialized in intaglio printing at Studio 7, did set design and painting as well as puppet making at various professional theater companies.

He continues to paint and has exhibited his work in Toronto, Montreal as well as the Eastern Townships, where he presently lives with his wife.
